MISS SUSIE LASLEY.

THE YOUNGEST AND PRETTIEST OF STATION AGENTS.

The cut above does not do full justice to the beauty of the lovely young lady it is intended to portray, for she is as pretty us she is bright and deserving. Two years ago when she was 20, she was given the station agency at Rowland, which had been held by her brother and in which she had often ussisted him She at once applied herself assidnonsly to the duties and his made a record for promptness and faithfulness, which would be a credit to one of many more years than has passed est and we will wager the prettiest station agent in the world.

Miss Lasley is of Virginian Jescent iy inherits the characteristics of both people. She is a branette, with nut brown hair and hazei eyes and is ultogether a very lovely and attractive giri, with a courage and independence ravely shown in one of her age. PROPAGATION FROM SLIPS.

Various Conditions Which the Profession al Considers Resential to Success.

In plant propagation the home gardener often loses sight of various conditions which the professional considers ossential. By the nid of the necompanying sketch of a begonia, a writer in American Gardening pointed out some of these. First, the slip should not be too hard or too soft at its base. If it be too hard, it will root with difficulty and grow slowly; if too soft, the slip is liable to decay or to make a weakly plant. trated, a point just below the third joint, counting up, was found to powers extremes named.

In preparing the cutting for the sand some pruning is desirable, for now there are no roots to sustain extra leaf surface. To remove the lower leaf entirely and cut away the points of the longer remaining leaves is all that is required, leaving the slip as shown at b.

Clean sand is the best substance in which to root cuttings. The cutting should not be set more than about half an inch deep. The sand should be somewhat compacted against it. The cutting box or pot should occupy a warm, light place, shading the slips, if the sunshine be strong. Enough water should be applied to keep the shoots from flagging, and frequent sprinkling of the foliage is desirable. As soon as roots half an inch in length have been formed it is time to pot the young plant.

The central ovals may frame the faces of the bride and her maid of honor, while the slx bridesunids fill the other spaces. Another urrangement may consist of the bride and groom as central figures, the mald of honor in the upper central small oval ners being occupied by the two bridesmalds and two ushers, if a smaller wedding party has been more expedient than the one with the greater unmber of participants.

EFFECT OF COLORS. It should lie Studied Well itefore

House is Decorated. There are colors that are refreshing and broadening, others that absorb light and give a boxed-up appearance to a room, others that make a room with a bleak northern exposure, or with no exposure at all, appear bright and cheerful; some that make a room appear warm, some that make it cold.

The thermometer seems to fall six degrees when you walk into a blue room. Yellow is an advancing color; therefore, a room fitted up in yellow will appear smaller than it is.

On the other hand, blue of a certain shade introduced generously into room will give an idea of space. Red makes no difference in regard to size. Green makes very little.

If a bright, sunny room gets its light from a space obtruded upon by russetcolored or yellow-painted houses, or else looke out upon a stretch of green grass, it should be decorated in a color very different from the shade chosen if the light comes from only an unbroken expanse of sky.

Hed brings ont in a room whatever hint of green lurks in the composition of the other colors employed.

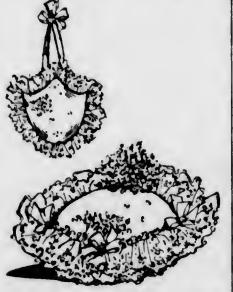

Green needs simlight to develop the vellow in it and make it seem cheerful. If olive or red brown be used in conjunction with mahogany furalture, the effect is very different from what It would be if blue were used. Blue would develop the tawny orange lurking in the ninhogany.

If a celling is to be made higher, leave It light, that it may appear to recede. Deepening the color used on the ceiling would make it lower-an effect desirable if the room is small and the Fads, at least fads of an improving celling very high. Various tones of vellow are substitutes for sunlight .-Upholsterer.

For the Bahy's Boudoir.

The newest convenience for the baby's boudoir is a big-bowled, longhandled spoon of yellow wood. The bowl is a painting of a scene from the land of fairles or nursery ditties. The classic cow performing her little aerial feat, Simple Simon, Little Boy Blue, Little Nan Ettycoat and other famillar personages ornament the bowl, whose curling edges make a frame for the gay little figures. All along the handle of the spoon are placed brass hooks, and when it is fastened to the wall by a larger and more solld hook placed at the back it makes an ornamental and very useful little rack for the children's clothes.

"For over a year I have been troubted with kidney disease, something like Bright's Disease, so the doctors informed me. They failed to cure me or in fact to do me any good whatever, and I made up my mind I was past cure. About two months ago, passing a drug store in Cincinnati, I saw a man giving away sample boxes of Dr. Hobbs Sparagus Kidney Pills. One was handed to me and I commenced to take them. I found they helped me immediately. After taking three boxes I feel that I am now well. I am past sixty-five, and I must say that I feel better than I bave for the past twenty years. They are a truly wonderful medicine.

LEE'S LIFE SPARED. Wisconsin Soldier Whose Thought of

Home Inspired Mercy. Gen. Robert E. Lee, the confederate commander, owed many years of life to the leniency of Thomas W. Burton, a well-to-do farmer of Raeine county. say. Burton enlisted la an Ohio regiment at the beginning of the war. He was an expert woodsman and a erack shot, and had lived in Virginia several years in the fifties. His experience in woodcraft and knowledge of the country adjacent to the James river and around Richmond commended him for the duties of a scout, and early in 1862 he received orders to report for special duty. He served as seout until wounded at Chancellorsville in May, 1863. He was discharged, and n few years later came to Wisconsin and engaged in farmlag. He attended the G. A. R. encampment at Buffalo, and related the story of Gen. Lee's escape from death to the group of veterans in the smoking ear. "Yes," he said, "I could have killed Leg as easily as a boy would knock a trapped woodehuek in the head. But I didn't. It was early in the war-the day that Lee took command of the confederate army of Virginia-and the death at that time of the ablest leader of the rebel forces might have had a powerful effect on the fate of the confederacy. Lee sat on a horse not over 20 feet from where I lay concealed behind a log. For five minutes my rifle covered his heart and my fingers rested on the trigger. I might have shot him dead and could have escaped without trouble, but I didn't. Lee was a great man, and I have been thankful niways that I did not shoot."

"Did Lee ever know of his escape?" asked the man with the Sixth Wisconsin artillery badge pinned on his lapel. Yes. After the war I wrote to him about it. He sent me this letter," and Mr. Burton produced a sheet of paper yellowed by age, the writing faded and barely legible. It bore the signature:

"R. E. Lee," and was as follows: "Rielimond, Va., Feb. 1, 1866. 'T. W. Burton, Racine.

"Dear Sir: Your favor of 20th ultimo attend. I think I remember the day to which you refer. I had on the day previous taken command of the troops (C. S.A.) about Richmond, and in company with Gen. G. W. Smith, whom I suceeeded, made a personal examination of the field. I do not doubt your statement, and while (several words here illegible) God, Ethank you. Cordially, R. E. Lee."

"After the battle of Seven Pines," Mr. Burton began his story, "our troops took up a position on both sides of the Chickshomiay, our left reaching into Chiekahominy swnmp. I was attached to. Gea. 'Si' Casey's division of Keyes eorps as a scout, and had spent several days in working through the big Chickahominy swamp. One afternoon—it was June 2 or 3, I think—I was in the swamp between our lines and the rebs. A little ereck ran through the swamp and lato the Chickshominy. I had sat down on a log behind a sumae orsome other small bush, when I heard sodiething moving through the bushes on the other side of the stream. I dropped down behind the log and well, Lee and Smith eat on their homes and talked. My rifle sights coverd a spot on Lee's gray coat directly over his heart. Then I thought I'd get the two in line, and kill them both. Twee I pressed the trigger to kill Lee, and once I started to pull to kill both. didn't I? I thought of my wife babes back in Ohio-and then of s dear ones. A PLUCKY SERGEANT.

Commission by Unswerving

Attention to Duty, Traveling in Arkansas not long ago ran across one of the coolest, bruvest, lolliest veterans, Orlando W. Easton. company C. Eleventh iown. i first knew him at Camp McCleibu, lowa, as frill sergeant and color bearer of his regiment. His war service was full of plueky deeds.

At Shiloh he had been Ill und off duty for several days. When on Sunday morning the long roll sounded. Easton appeared carrying the flug and supported by two of the color guard. Being too weak to walk without ald, Capt. Joe Neaf ordered him out of the rnnks. As he was off duty on morning report, Easton went directly to the surgion and said:

"Mark me for duty." Surgeon Watsoa replied: "You fool, you're sick."

"MARK ME FOR DUTY."

surgeon steadlly in the eye said, quite emphatiently: "Mark me for duty." The ourgeon quickly complled. Easton again took the colors, and with help reached the front. I lost sight of him until about three o'clock p. m. Our ammunition had given out; we were ordered back. We had to abandon a battery, and the enemy turned on us immediately. Seeing this our lieutenantcolonel, Hall (the colonel having been badly wounded), although shot through the leg, ordered us to charge with the bayonet and recapture those guns.

The charge was led by Sergt. Easton, The enemy were driven back, and Sergt. Easton, Capt. Neal, and a few other boys "spiked the guns," then beat a hasty retreat for the Landing, over three miles away.

Easton had taken the government bunting flag into the fight, leaving the regimental banner and silk ting in the mnde n detour to the quarters, and umld a rain of leaden hall secured the two silk flags, and with the remnant of the old bunting made a safe retreat.

One more incident: During the summer of '03, while camped on the Hatchie giver in Tennessee, Gen. M. M. Crocker had the Eleventh lows moved across the river from the rest of the brigade. The eaemy formed a line aimost around us, and were daily expecting attack. Our force was too small to hold our ground without reinforcements. Our position was critical. The colonel called for a volunteer sergeant for vidette duty. Sergt. Easton responded, and was sent up the river a mile or more with 26 men to see that the enemy did not close our only avenue of escape.

Toward midnight an owl's hoot sounded across the river to the right. In a few minutes a similar sound naswered from the opposite direction. They seemed to be about a mile apart. The screennt was standing with his back against a tree, motionless. Soon came a second cail and reply. "Not much owl," remarked the sergeant to me sententiously, "but the sort of a bird we're out here after." Chilling for four men to follow, he led the way into the dense, dark forest, getting as nealy on a line between the hooters as lost. But one man said: "Sergt. E., von eatch the fellow on the right, and I'll try for the one on the left." Nearer and nearer came footsleps, with an occasional crackling of twigs underfoot. When they were four or five feet from us: "Halt!" snng out the sergeant, making a spring toward his "owl." A rupid exchange of shots rang out. The "birds" wheeled and rau, the sergeant in close pursuit, firing at the retreating "owl," antil the "bird" jumped or fell into the river. In a short time the sergeant put in an appearance, hot, dirty and woc-begone-looking, scratched and bleeding from coming in contact with the lowhanging beech lkpbs. . But his feelings were the worst lacerated, as he had failed to accomplish what he had expected to do. But the colonel had heard the shooting, also the owls (2), and had come out to see what had been done. He was more exelted than the sergeaut, as he was in undress uniform and on his horse's bare back. He said brave officers were in demand, and he would never rest until Sergt. E. wore shoulder-straps. In the spring of '63 a large envelope reached Easton containing a captain's commission and an order to report at headquarters for duty. And so he left us .- A Veteran, in National Tribuac.

Han in the Blood. The ordinary of a Georgia county lavited all the war veterans to meet at his office on a certain day. When the day arrived he was surprised at the number of young men who put is appearance. "Gentlemen," he said, "there must be some mistake. I wanted to meet war veterans, and I um here confronted with a majority of the young nien of the county." "Ordinary," spoke up one tail, sook-less fellow, "it's true we never done no fightia', but our families did, and ef we don't inherit the durned war I'd like to know who does!"-Atlanta Constitu-

An Up-to-Date Proposal.

Dr. R. L. Patterson, of Coyville, Kan., furnishes the Medical Journal with a unique letter written by a young man of his aequalntance to tils affinity. It may be considered us a thoroughly up-to-date marriage proposal: "My Dear Miss E .: I hereby announce myself as a candidate for your hand and I shall use all fair and honorable means | hours of painstaking labor, skill and to secure the nomination. I know there are many candidates in the field, and I hesitated long before entering the race. but now i sm in It to stay. My views on love and matrimony have often been expressed in your hearing in an emphatic way. If you decide to confer upon me the honor I speak of please fix n date for a cancus with your mother. I have no objection to her acting as temporary eheirman, provided it is clearly understood that I am to be chairman of the permanent organization. Should the result of the caucus prove satisfactory we can soon hold the primarles and seleet a date and place of convention.' I never believed in long eampaigns, so if you decide to honor me I will ask you to make the convention date as early as possible. Devotedly yours, etc." The following telegram aaswered: "Caueus unnecessary, nomination unanlinous; come at once and fix the date of ratifiestion."

A mine inspector in Montaga is reported as having found a coal mine in that state with one passage three miles explore. Upon the walls there is a gathering of moisture that looks like white frost, and the dead air in the passage is poisonous. In a few minutes a feeling of drowsiness steals over a man who breathes it, and before long be is asleep and dreaming deliciously, so those say who have been resuscitated. Hut unless help comes there is no awakening from this sleep, and if the venturesome explorer realizes his danger and staggers out in time, or is resened by friends, every bone and musele aches with intolerable poigniney. The freatment is simple but effective. Being nearly dend, he is nearly buried. A hole is dug in the soft ourth, and the victim is made to stand up in it, while the dirt is thrown around him until only his head is seen above ground. This draws out the soreness, and in a short time the patient has recovered.

In St. Louis, Mo., the other day was another incident of phenomenal luck, in this case backed up by a strong set of teeth. Morris Gohan, a livery stable employe, quarreled with a companon, and the inter pulled a revolver and fired at Gohnn, who was standing only five feet away. The revolver was of very large caliber, and when the bullet struck Gohnn in the mouth it knocked him over. He quickly got up, however, and possible. Suddenly we found we were picked the ball out of his mouth. It had struck his teeth and knocked three of them out, leut otherwise he was unipjured, his grinders having been strong enough to stop the force of the ball, and put it in a small saucepan with fired at anclose range as it was.

COFFEE DESSERTS.

They Aredot Only Delicions, But Very Sastly Prepared.

Coffee is the most delicious flavoring for summer desserts. The essence of coffee, which is used, is easily prepared, but should always be fresh. The secret of flavoring with coffee lies in having this essence so fresh and pure that it has the delicious aroun of a cup of good coffee. Take a tablespoonful of the best collee, freshly ground, a cup of cold water. Let the fluid boil until h is reduced to about two tablespoontale. Strain it through a cloth, pressure it well; for it cool, and it is ready for use.

A "coffee mousse" is a most ricicious local densert, and is prepared without the trouble in freezing which an iceeream involves. This mouse is made as follows: Put two empfuls of sweet, rich cream in a bowl. Fill a pan with ehopped ice, place the bowl in the pan, was rushing downward at a terrific rate, and begin to beat the cream with n fine managed to detach his parachute and wire whip. Beat slowly at first, then faster, until it is a fine, flom froth. When it is all frothed, and two tablespoontals of powdered sugar and three tublespoonfuls of coffee essence, and beat them together well. Put the mousse in a long, slender mold, and cover it tightly, sealing the edge of the cover with mutton tallow, and pack it away in a pail covered with eracked loe and rock sait. Three quarts of salt are sufficient for a pailful of ice. with the exests, costs-of-arms, heraldry The mouse should be packed away and other tom-foolery of the effete. In for about six hours. If the mold is lorge in diaméter, it may be opened once and the frozen parts removed from the cides with a kulfe. If the mold is elender, it should be left undisturbed. A coffee mousee makes a most attractive desert M served with a clear red sherry ice heaped around it.

For a coffee custard, boil a quart of rallk and add two tablespoonfuls of coffee essence. Add five yolks of eggs and two tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar. Stir the mixture well, and pay his taxes. About three years ago, atrain it; pour it into cusmed cups, and was beaten by a swifter taxpayer, and to helf the height of the cups. ply to the question: Would you have a thoroughbred herit of hogs on every form? a prominent hog-raiser said: If my plan could prevail I would have nothing but pure hred hogs in this country. I do not mean by that that every herd should be registered. That would be an expensive uselessness, but I do mean that all spock should be traceafole to recorded uncestry. Then let the registered herds be How to Entertain Pupils on Rainy kept up to the highest standard of excellence to supply a male heart for each of these pork herds. I say that until the thoroughbred hog shall be given a place on every farm his true mission is not fulfilled, and further that the mission of the professional breeder if he be honest and unselfish and sees the whole thoroughbred scheme in its proper light is not fulfilled until such is the case. If every farmer could see this plan from the proper standpoint and could comprehend the advantages accruing from its consummation three years at most would accomplish the work. But though firm in the faith as I am I have grave doubts if it is ever accomplished.
